

Home Schooling High School for Post Secondary A Seminar of Options for Your Unique Learner

In this workshop, participants will learn:

- Unschooling high-school and getting into Post-Secondary programs
- Options for earning a diploma
- Options for marks and credits in subjects without a diploma
- Resources available for online, in-person and correspondence courses
- Deadlines and financial concerns including scholarships and loans.
- Advocating for your child with learning disabilities in high school and post-secondary

Previous Participants said...

- The information provided was excellent! I would recommend this to every student going into high school.
- I'm less afraid of heading into high school.
- I learned so much. I am grateful to know all the options available depending on each child's interests and personalities. I feel fully informed.
- I learned that there are many ways to homeschool through high school.
- I am clear on how my son can get into university and post-secondary if he chooses.

Judy Arnall teaches parenting at The University of Calgary, Continuing Education, Chinook Learning, and Alberta Health Services. Judy is the author of the Canadian bestseller, Discipline Without Distress: 135 Tools for raising caring, responsible children without time-out, spanking, punishment or bribery and the newly released DVD, Plugged-In Parenting: Connecting with the Digital Generation for Health, Safety and Love. Judy is the parent of 5 homeschooled children, three of whom are at university. Jarnall@shaw.ca 403-714-6766

